International Driving Permit (IDP) Information and application form

What is an International Driving Permit?

An International Driving Permit (IDP) is issued to holders of an Australian state/territory driver's licence. An IDP is a special driving permit for tourists, authorised by a United Nations Treaty as:

- a means of allowing you to drive internationally, without further tests or applications, provided your domestic driver's licence is valid
- proof that you hold a valid driver's licence in your home country at the date of issue of the IDP.

An International Driving Permit:

- Is not a stand-alone document or a substitute for a valid driving licence—you must carry your Australian state/territory driver's licence with your IDP at all times.
- It in no way diminishes your obligations to conform strictly to the laws and regulations of the countries that you visit.
- Is valid only for 12 months from the date of issue or the expiry date of your Australian driver's licence (whichever is the lesser period).

Even if you don't intend driving when you travel overseas, carrying an IDP can be helpful as an extra form of identification.

Besides allowing you to drive in foreign countries, IDPs are officially sanctioned by the United Nations and accepted worldwide (in over 150 countries) as a recognisable form of identification. Having an IDP:

- allows you to carry your identification details in nine languages (English, French, Spanish, Russian, Chinese, Arabic, Greek, German and Japanese)
- provides you with an extra piece of identification along with your personal details (this can be useful if you are ever asked to surrender (or lose) your passport, which can happen under certain circumstances in some countries).

Who is eligible to apply?

You are eligible to apply for an IDP if:

- you hold a current Australian state/territory driver's licence (not an overseas driver's licence)
- you are 18 years of age or over (including those with a provisional licence or P plate).

You cannot be issued an IDP if:

- you hold a learner driver's permit
- you have restrictions on your Australian state/territory driver's licence e.g.; alcohol ignition interlock, court orders, driver's aid, etc.

Protect your identity

Lost or stolen IDPs cause inconvenience and may be used by others to assume your identity for illegal activities. Please keep your IDP safe at all times. Please report any loss to international@aaa.asn.au with the details of your case.

Important

This International Driving Permit is a translation of your Australian state/territory driver's licence and is valid only for one year from the date of issue unless your domestic driving licence expires, is suspended or revoked in the meantime.

The IDP validity is for a translation purposes only, and does not provide for a legal right to drive within any contracting country unless the local domestic law provides for such a right. Applicants must be aware that in some instances additional certification is required from the visiting country prior to the IDP being given legal status. Applicants should contact the embassy or consulate of the intended country of visit to confirm the status of the IDP, and for the driving requirements and eligibility for that country.

You are required to carry your Australian state/territory driver's licence with your IDP while overseas.

An IDP does not diminish the obligation of the holder to conform strictly to the laws and regulations relating to residence or the exercise of a profession which are in force in each country visited.

An IDP may allow you to drive or ride the vehicles you intend to use. Some travel insurance policies will not cover you if you have an accident using a vehicle you are not licenced to drive or will not accept an IDP. Please ensure that you check with your travel insurance company.

Check before travelling

- Check your IDP requirements at www.aaa.asn.au.
- Visit www.smartraveller.gov.au to view the latest travel advice.

Warning on fraudulent IDPs

Please note that the only authorised IDP issuing body in Australia is the Australian Automobile Association (AAA). IDPs issued by AAA are distributed through the state and territory motoring organisations. Counterfeit IDPs are being offered for sale on the internet, usually at inflated prices. These forged IDPs are illegal. If you hold one, you may get into a great deal of difficulty with the traffic authorities in foreign countries.

Your passport photo must:

- Be taken no more than six months before lodgement of an application.
- Be 45-50mm in height and 35-40mm in width.
- Show a close up of your head and the top of your shoulders such that the measurement from the bottom of the chin to the crown of the head is between 32 and 36 mm.
- Be centred, clear and in sharp focus with no shadows.
- Be of high quality, with no ink marks or creases and be on photographic paper.
- Have appropriate brightness and contrast that show skin tones naturally.
